In a free country, a newspaper is a teller of truth. It tells millions of persons what has happened or what might happen.

In this way, these millions learn what they need to do to keep their country strong and free.

In our country, the job of the newspaper is so important that the men who founded our nation said in the Constitution: Newspapers are to be free – free to tell the truth about anybody or anything. It had to be this way so that you, too, might always be free.

Because one of its jobs is to help you stay free, your newspaper is interested in you.

You may be too young to vote or to get married, but you are not too young to be a part of your newspaper, or for it to be a part of you.

It may have printed something about you when you were born. It is always eager to know what happens to you and what you think.

You can write to its editor, telling what you believe about any subject of general interest. (Examples: Should schools be kept open 11 months a year? Should your city have more recreation areas for young persons?)

If it's a good letter, your newspaper will print it so that all the readers can know what you think.

Our Motto

It has been our desire to establish these places as retreats where you may find surcease and relief from the everyday cares of life. We don't want you to look upon them as restaurants, cafes or cabarets, but as havens where you will be assured of relaxation and a pleasant hour or two safe in the port of sincere hospitality.
